WITH ALL THIS DOUBT, IT WOULD SEEM THAT CONSUMERS ARE WARY OF SHARING THEIR PERSONAL DATA. BUT ARE THEY? QUITE THE OPPOSITE.

Inherently, consumers understand their personal data is worth something and that they deserve a better customer experience if they choose to share it.

The best way for marketers at Indian banks to engage is through the piece of plastic that they use most — their bank cards.

95% of respondents from India are interested in receiving relevant offers and discounts on their bank cards based on where they make purchases (vs. 70% internationally).

Organizations looking to target consumers in one of the world's key emerging economies will find less resistance to personal data-gathering efforts than in other countries.

Consumers from India are the most comfortable in sharing their personal information, for example:
